

SPLETNA STRAN: web page vs. website vs. internet site

<https://www.javatpoint.com/webpage-vs-website>

The primary difference between a webpage and a website is that a webpage is a single document on the Internet under a unique URL. In contrast, a website is a collection of multiple webpages in which information on a related topic or other subject is linked together under a domain address.

<https://www.collinsdictionary.com/dictionary/english/internet-site>

Internet site (often capital) is another name for website. It is a group of connected pages on the World Wide Web containing information on a particular subject.